

OUR AUTHORS

Jaanus Plaat has worked as the director of the Estonian National Museum 1995–2005; since 2006, he is Professor at the Chair of Folk Art and Cultural Anthropology in the Estonian Academy of Arts. His main research domains during the recent years have encompassed the history of the Orthodox and Old Believers and their sacral buildings in Estonia.

jaanus.plaat@gmail.com

*

Liina Paales is researcher of Deaf folklore and culture, and lecturer at Tartu University. She is also a certified Estonian Sign Language interpreter.

liina.paales@mail.ee

*

Karl Pajusalu is Professor of Estonian Dialectology and History of the Estonian Language at the Institute of Estonian and General Linguistics, University of Tartu, Estonia. His main areas of research are phonetics and phonology of Estonian dialects; phonological and morphological variation of Estonian and related languages; historical formation of the Estonian language area.

karl.pajusalu@ut.ee

*

Renate Pajusalu is Professor of General Linguistics in the University of Tartu. Her research interests include semantics and pragmatics from cognitive and interactional perspective; first and second language acquisition.

renate.pajusalu@ut.ee

*

Evy Johanne Håland is currently the Marie Curie Intra-European Fellow, Department of Archaeology and History of Art, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. Earlier she was a researcher affiliated with Unifob Global, University of Bergen, Norway. Her main research area is connected with Hellenian traditions, customs and festivals.

evyhaa@online.no

*

Francis Joy currently works at the Arctic Centre, Rovaniemi, Finland, as a researcher and PhD candidate and is involved in interviews and field-work with Sami participants and investigating shamanism and the Sami in Lapland. Francis has a Master's degree from the University of Helsinki, Finland (2007), in the Science of Religion, with a special focus on shamanism and rock paintings in Finland.

fjoy@ulapland.fi

*

Tatiana Panina was a post-graduate student of the Institute of Udmurt History, Language and Literature, Ural Department of the Russian Academy of Sciences, and works at the moment as a teacher at the Izhevsk State Medical Academy. Her main research area is Udmurt folklore.

tipanina@mail.ru

*

Galina Misharina is a Doctoral student at the University of Helsinki, with her research endeavours focusing on Komi lamenting traditions.

galina.misharina@helsinki.fi

*

Nina Yurchenkova is Professor at the Chair of Russian and Foreign Literature in Mordovian State Pedagogical Institute named after M. Yevseyev. Nina Yurchenkova's main research domain involves Mordovian folklore and mythology, she is the author of numerous articles and books.

nina-saransk@mail.ru