

BIONOTES

Daniil Akinin is Candidate of Philosophical Sciences, Associate Professor. In 2005 he graduated with honors from the Faculty of Philosophy of the Saratov State University, since 2018 - Associate Professor of the Department of History and Theory of Politics of the Moscow State University. The sphere of scientific interests ranges from collective memory and strategies of its trauma, religious policy of memory, ethical aspects of historical knowledge. Author of three monographs and 100 articles, including in Germany, Great Britain, Belarus. Email: dandee@list.ru

Natalia Artemenko (Prof. Dr.), PhD in Philosophy, works at the St. Petersburg State University, Institute of Philosophy/Research Center for Cultural Exclusion and Frontier Zones, Sociological Institute, RAS, Russia)/ Editor-in-chief: «HORIZON. Studies in Phenomenology», <http://horizon.spb.ru/>. Her research (see <https://spbu.academia.edu/NataliaArtemenko>) mostly concerns phenomenology, hermeneutics, ethics, the problem of subjectivity, the problem of time and temporariness, trauma studies, and memory studies. Her latest publications on trauma include (selected): "Cataleptic consciousness. Language as a figure of silence" (Rivista di Estetica, 2018. № 67, P. 136-149), The Topology of Trauma: Individual Traumatic Experience and Experience of Historical Catastrophes (Ed. by N. Artemenko, Publishing House "Renome", St.Petersburg, 2020). Email: n.a.artemenko@gmail.com

Maya Camargo-Vemuri is a PhD candidate and research assistant at Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies. Her dissertation focuses on the instrumentalization of sexual violence in genocide, focusing on the Holocaust and Nazi-occupied territories in Eastern Europe. Her research focuses on issues of politics, identity, memory, nationalism, and prejudice in conflict and genocide, and is regionally focused on Eastern, Central and Southeastern Europe. Email: mcamarg2@jhu.edu

Siarhei Hruntau is a senior researcher in the ethnology department of the Center for the Belarusian Culture, Language and Literature researches of the National Academy of Sciences of Belarus. He studies historical cemeteries and memorial traditions in Belarus and its borderland regions. He is an author of the chapters on the Belarusian memorial landscape in the series of academic books about the contemporary ethnocultural processes in the regions of Belarus (2016 - 2020), translator and co-editor of A.K. Serzhputovski's book "The Belarusians of Polesie" (2018). Email: szereszew@gmail.com

Alyona Ivanova is a clinical psychologist, working as an Acting Head of the Clinical Psychology Department at the Pirogov Russian National Research Medical University and Senior Researcher at the Medical Psychology Department of the Mental Health Research Center. She studies sense of humor in different areas of psychology such as humor comprehension in healthy people, humor disorders in psychiatric patients, gelotophobia, gelotophilia and katagelasticism, humor styles in Russia, hospital clowning. Email: ivalenka13@gmail.com

Ksenia Kapelchuk is an MA in philosophy and assistant professor of philosophy in

ITMO University in Saint Petersburg, Russia, as well as associate researcher at the Research Center for Cultural Exclusion and Borderland Areas of Sociological Institute of Russian Academy of Sciences. Since 2018 she has participated in the research project «Theory of cultural trauma: individual traumatic experience and experience of historical catastrophes» and published a series of articles concerning such issues as the difference between victim and sacrifice, the problem of representation in the context of trauma, and the temporality of trauma. Email: ksenya_ka@list.ru

Uldis Krēsliņš is a researcher at the Department of 20th Century Research of Institute of Latvian History at the University of Latvia.

His main research topic is 20th century political history of Latvia. As a member of The Scientific Commission for Latvian SSR KGB Research established by governmental order, he has several publications about KGB repressive methods and role in Latvian society (e.g. “Soviet Repressive Psychiatry: The Latvia’s Case 1940-1980ies” in Anthropology Open Access, 2018). Email: ul.kreslins@sveiks.lv

Tuulikki Kurki is a Senior Researcher at Karelian Institute, University of Eastern Finland. She is the leader of the project Writing Cultures and Traditions at Borders. The project examines writing practices, texts and amateur and professional writers in the national Finland–Russia and Estonia–Russia borderlands, focusing on the late 20th century and early 21st century. Her research interests include Finnish language literature in the Soviet and Russian Karelia, peasant writers in Finland, amateur writers and amateur ethnographers, borders and borderlands. Email: tuulikki.kurki@uef.fi

Jolita Lukšyte is PhD student (suspended studies in 2017) and visiting lecturer in Department of Communication, Faculty of Social Science University of Latvia. As lecturer and researcher worked in Department of Literature’s History and Theory and Center of Cultural Anthropology (Šiauliai University), Department of Lithuanian Literature (Vilnius University) and Communication Department (Vytautas Magnus University). Main research interest include sociology of literature, public relation, gender stereotypes, feministic novel, women writing and body language, women representation in contemporary literature and mass media. Recent publications circle around the same topic, e.g. Autobiographical writing and reading strategies in contemporary Lithuanian women's prose. Where and why (e)migrate women of the modern Lithuanian novel? Peculiarities of the use of the terms of feminism in Lithuanian and Latvian. Email: j.luksyte@gmail.com

Andrey Makarychev is Visiting Professor at Johan Skytte Institute of Political Science, University of Tartu. He is also guest Professor at Center for Global Politics, Free University in Berlin and Senior Associate with CIDOB think tank in Barcelona. His previous institutional affiliations included George Mason University (US), Center for Security Studies and Conflict Research (ETH Zurich), and Danish Institute of International Studies. Andrey Makarychev teaches courses on "Globalization", "Regime Change in post-Soviet Eurasia", "EU-Russia Relations", "Regionalism and Integration in the post-Soviet Area", "Media in Russia". In recent years he co-authored two monographs - "Celebrating Borderlands in a Wider Europe: Nations and Identities in Ukraine, Georgia and Estonia" (Nomos, 2016), and "Lotman's Cultural Semiotics and the Political"

(Rowman and Littlefield, 2017). He co-edited (all with Alexandra Yatsyk) a number of academic volumes - "Mega Events in post-Soviet Eurasia: Shifting Borderlands of Inclusion and Exclusion" (Palgrave Macmillan, 2016), "Vocabularies of International Relations after the Crisis in Ukraine (Routledge, 2017); "Borders in the Baltic Sea Region: Suturing the Ruptures" (Palgrave Macmillan, 2017).

Email: andrey.makarychev@ut.ee

Sylwia Papier is a Ph.D. candidate in cultural studies at the Faculty of Polish Studies of the Jagiellonian University. She is an academic secretary of the Research Center for Memory Cultures. As a member of the Curatorial Collective, she co-curated several exhibitions, besides others: "Memory lap", "KL Plaszow", &quot;Material witness" "Mark Plaszow. She was a junior research assistant in "Awkward Objects Of Genocide. Vernacular Art on the Holocaust and Ethnographic Museums" research project and "Thinking through the Museum: Difficult Knowledge in Public Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada" research project (Concordia University). She is a co-editor of books: Identyfikacje Zagłady. Szkice historyczne i praktyki kulturowe (Krakow 2017), Jak burgund pod światło...Szkice o Zuzannie Ginczance (Krakow 2018), Rzeczowy świadek (Krakow 2019). She was awarded the European Holocaust Research Infrastructure Fellowship (Yad Vashem (2018). Email: sylwia.papier3@gmail.com

Aleksei Smirnov is Associate Professor of Cultural Theory at the Saint-Petersburg University, Russia, as well as a member of the research group "Theory of cultural trauma: individual traumatic experience and experience of historical catastrophes" sponsored by Russian Foundation for Basic Researches. He has published in Russian scientific journals, specialising on history of Soviet art and everyday life. His latest publications on trauma include «The images of wedding in the soviet painting of 1960 – 1970s: representation of the power strategies» (1st Russian Aesthetic Congress, 2018) and «Trauma studies in the context of Russian memorial policy» (Mechanisms for formation of cultural exclusion and frontier zones – 2019: conference schedule and materials. St.Petersburg, 2019). Email: darapti@mail.ru

Liat Steir-Livny is an Assistant Professor (Senior Lecturer) in the Department of Cultural Studies, Creation and Production at Sapir College, and a tutor and course coordinator for the Cultural Studies MA program and the Department of Literature, Language, and the Arts at the Open University of Israel. Her research focuses on the changing commemoration of the Holocaust in Israel from the 1940s until the present. She has authored numerous articles and five books. In 2019 she won The Young Scholar Award given jointly by the Association for Israel Studies (AIS) and the Israel Institute. Email: liatsteirlivny@gmail.com

Sergey Troitskiy, PhD in Philosophy, works at the Herzen State Pedagogical University of Russia / St. Petersburg State University, Institute of Philosophy / Research Center for Cultural Exclusion and Frontier Zones, Sociological Institute of RAS - Branch of Federal Research Sociological Centre, Russia. His research touches upon the history of Russian philosophy, history and theory of Russian culture, theory of cultural exclusion and frontier zones, trauma and memory studies, Russian philosophy of art, methodology of cultural studies in perspectives of Russian philosophy, and gelology (laughter studies). The latest publications on trauma include (selected): Troitskiy, S., Krechko N. Traumatic experience and discourse of responsibility in the Russian middle Ages [Травматический опыт и дискурс ответственности в русском Средневековье] In: Historical memory: traumas of the past, contradictions of the present, prospects of the future [Историческая память: травмы прошлого, противоречия настоящего, перспективы будущего]. Saratov, 2018. P. 232-237. ISBN 978-5-9999-3102-3 (in Russian); Troitskiy, S. The construct of trauma as the basis for the formation of topographical hierarchy [Конструкт травмы как основа для формирования топографической иерархии]. NZ, № 1(123), 2019. P. 123-131. (in Russian); Troitskiy, S. The syntax for the loss [Синтаксис утраты]. Studia Culturae. 2017. Vol. 2 (32). P. 160-172. (in Russian). See more at: Google Scholar account 7yybd40AAAAJ&hl and <http://philosophy.spbu.ru/1558><http://socinst.ru/ru/node/557><http://spbu.academia.edu/SergeyTroitskiy> Email: sergtroy@yandex.ru

Yulia Zevako is researcher of Ural Branch of Russian Academy of Sciences, Institute of History and Archaeology, PhD. She graduated Historical Department, Ural State University named after A.M. Gorky (now – Ural Federal University named after the first President of Russia B.N. Yeltsin), master of history, in 2010, and Saratov State University named after N.G. Chernyshevsky in 2012, PhD in Political Science (dissertation “Technologies for the Formation of Political Identity: Mechanisms, Resources, Efficiency”). She was an assistant (2011-2013), senior lecturer (2013-2016) at the Department of Social, Economic and Humanitarian Sciences of the Moscow Aviation Institute's Sunrise branch in Baikonur. Her research area focuses on the phenomenon of identity, ethnicity, national politics and nationalism, politics and practices of memory, trauma studies. Email: <mailto:milirita@rambler.ru>