While writing this thesis I have been continually surrounded by helpful and supportive people. All of you, who have been with me during my personal rollercoaster filled with passion in many senses, I thank you from the bottom of my heart.

I have enjoyed the support of three judicious supervisors Prof. Emeritus Anna-Leena Siikala, Prof. Emeritus Annikki Kaivola-Bregenhøj and PhD Mervi Naakka-Korhonen. I thank you for your challenging questions and remarks, insights and encouragement.

Writing this thesis would have not been possible without the people who shared their illness experiences. Thank you and I promise I will always carry your stories in my mind. Equally, I want to thank people from the Finnish Literary Society and Finnish cancer patients' associations who organised the writing competition in 1994. My particular gratitude belongs to Juha Nirkko, who helped me continuously with my research materials and helped solve complex issues regarding the interpretation of ethnomedical records.

Writing this thesis in English, operating between two languages that are not my own, has been a challenge. Birgit Paal and Daniel Allen have taken care that I improved my English during the writing process. Thank you for your time and dedication, but most importantly for believing in me.

I am also really thankful for the generosity of the Jenny and Antti Wihuri Foundation, and the University of Helsinki for providing financial assistance for this work.

My deepest gratitude belongs to my family. Thank you for being there for me. My husband, Dr Jukka Krisp, has been my personal psychologist, dumb-reader, supporter, and also a provider in the times that were not so rosy. I owe you big-time! To my dear children, Linda and Andres: you think your mother is working ALL THE TIME, well, now it is done.
